Dear Mr. Secretary,

I am writing you somewhat dispairingly in the hope that you can straighten out my membership status in A I A. The Legg Island Society chapter of which I was a member when I joined AIA in 1957 seems unable to do so.

Since joining the association I have paid my mational dues each year and expect to continue to do so. However, in 1965 I moved from Long Island to Vermont, at which time I notified the chapter that I could no longer be an active member since it is too far from here to L. I. to go to meetings. I thought of transferring to the Vermont chapter, but their meetings are in Burlington which is just as far away in the other direction. Furthermore they made no advances that might have led to my joining them.

So I stopped paying chapter dues. But they insist I must pay them and remain a member of the chapter if I am to continue being a member of AIA. They just sent me a bill for $79.00 back dues. I have no intention of paying it. What I want is to be placed in an 'unassigned' category, like a casual in the army, a member of the AIA but not of any particular chapter. Why is this not fossible?

Incidentally I have not applied for license in Vermont and have no intention of doing so. I do not practice architecture here, only landscape architecture. What little architecture I do is in NY, Pa. or Tenn. where I am licensed to practice. After all, I am well past the retirement age.

I would appreciate your straightening this matter out, if possible.

Cordially yours,

Henry B. Raymore

Mr. Henry B. Raymore, ALA Box 245 Arlington, Vermont 05250

Dear Mr. Raymore:

We have received your letter of February 12th about your membership in the Long Island Society Chapter, AIA.

It is mandatory for corporate members of AIA to be assigned to chapters at all times. It is not possible to maintain corporate membership otherwise. Naturally members must also pay Chapter dues as well as dues to National and if such local dues remain unpaid, the Chapters can recommend National to terminate the memberships for nonpayment of Chapter dues.

Although we have not yet received such a recommendation from the Long Island Society we imagine one will be forthcoming unless the dues matter is straightened out soon.

There is a type of status, called Membership Emeritus, for members who are retired or members who are over 70 years of age. One of the requirements is that the member has completed 15 years of AIA membership immediately prior to submitting his application for such status. This particular requirement, however, can be lessened by the Secretary of AIA when members have not completed the required 15 years of membership but who qualify otherwise. The Secretary usually does this when the local chapters concerned so recommend.

May we suggest, therefore, that you write your local Chapter explaining your situation and asking them to consider recommending to National that the requirement mentioned above be waived in your case to permit your election. (This would be necessary since you were only admitted in 1957.) Your letter to the Chapter should be accompanied by your payment for past dues in arrears. If you cannot possibly afford to pay the dues, also ask the Chapter to consider waiving them.

Incidentally, Membership Emeritus permits corporate members to enjoy full rights and privileges of active corporate membership while being relieved of further dues payments to National AIA and their chapters.

In summary, your membership and standing in AIA is conditioned on your membership and standing in the Chapter to which you are assigned. The only way you could be relieved of payment of Chapter dues is by the Chapter waiving them. You could be elected a Member Emeritus of the AIA if the Chapter agrees to lessening the 15 years of AIA membership requirement and if your outstanding dues to the Chapter are either paid or waived.

Sincerely yours,

Maureen Marx, Manager Membership Procedures

Dear Miss Marx

Your letter of Feb. 29th in reply to mine of Feb 12th has remained unanswered simply because it not only did not present a practical solution for the problem posed, but because of some of its insulting language. It isn't a question, my dear miss, of whether or not I can afford dues in either the L. I. Society Chapter or the AIA itslef.

Since moving here and practically retiring in 1965 I have been in more or less intermittent correspondence with the various officers of the Chapter, but the best they can do is refer me to the National office, and when I do that, I get you! The only course remaining open to me is to resign both from the Chapter, and the AIA itself, which I hereby do.

I have always supported the AIA as I think it is a beneficial organization, and would be willing to do so in future, but I will not pay dues to a chapter whose meetings I cannot attend, nor for a magazing I do not often receive, and never want. There must be hundreds of architects in small, remote communities who cannot attend distant chapter meetings, and there must be hundreds more semi-retired who would like to continue their connection with the mational organization. But no provision is made for them. If the national organization does not care about such members, or does not want them, it will have to do without them. In this one small town another former member resigned not very long ago. For people like us the organization does nothing so there is no reason why we should support it. May I say that the A S L A does a much better job.

Very truly yours, Raymon ASLA

Bear Mr. Raymore:

I have re-read my letter to you of February 29th and fail to see what is insulting except perhaps the part at the bottom of page one which states, "If you cannot possibly afford to pay the dues". I apologize for using that phrase. Actually a Chapter may waive a member's chapter dues under exceptional circumstances and for what it deems to be adequate cause, so that the reason for doing this need not be for financial difficulties.

Moreover, I thought that Nembership Emeritus would be a practical solution to your problem because if you were elected to that status you could continue as a full fledged corporate member without the burden of having to pay dues, especially to a Chapter in whose activities you cannot participate, considering, also, your statement that a transfer of your assignment to Vermont would not help matters. Apparently I was mistaken again.

The structure of the AIA is such that it functions largely through its components. There may be better ways for fulfilling the aims of the AIA but so far this close rapport with the components seems to be the best answer and one that does not impose a hardship on most members. The AIA fully recognizes that not all members can participate fully in chapter activities and that some members are retired or semi-retired. That is why there are provisions for waiving a member's dues in the Chapters' and Institute's Bylaws and why the classification, Hembership Emeritus, exists.

As you requested, we are accepting your resignation and notice is enclosed. Your comments are being called to the attention of Mr. Max Urbahu, FAIA, Director of the New York Region, and Mr. Robert Levison, FAIA, Chairman of the Chapter Affairs Committee.

Attention: Miss Maureen Marx

Dear Miss Marx:

I am writing this letter in my own name, because I feel moved enough to express my personal opinion.

As Treasurer of the Long Island Society Chapter, I have, of course, had direct contact with the case of Henry B. Raymore. My reaction is stimulated by sympathy for him, but more than that, I think there should be enough flexibility in the organization of the AIA to take care of a situation such as this.

It certainly does not seem fair that a man who has been a member of our organization for many years and who still has a feeling of loyalty towards it should be cast aside, due to circumstances beyond his control. Surely you must appreciate why, located where he is, he cannot accept the payment of dues to a local Chapter and to a State Association which can do him no good. His attempts to obtain local registration apparently have met with failure.

I am not criticizing you for actions which AIA regulations bind you to, but I do think that if your voice has any influence, you should use it to have the by-laws amended, to take care of situations such as this.

Sincerely yours,

Leon Rosenthal, A.I.A.

Dear Mr. Rosenthal: Re: Your letter of May 2

- Henry Raymore

The question you raise in your letter leads me to wonder whether you have read our previous correspondence on the matter.

Originally, Mr. Raymore wrote to us complaining about the Long Island Society billing him for dues. He sent us the bill you sent him. We then advised him that you were within your rights to bill him, unless the Chapter agreed to waive the dues. If you knew about his situation and sympathize with him and if the executive committee of your chapter share your sympathy why didn't you simply waive the dues and stop billing him? The only binding part about having to belong to a chapter is paying dues to it. There are no rules that a member has to participate in the chapter's activities or come to chapter meetings and probably one of the reasons there are mot such rules is to allow for more flexibility in dealing with unusual membership problems.

It is not uncommon for a chapter to waive a member's dues if there isn't any other answer to his problem when that member cannot benefit by being assigned to or cannot pay dues to that chapter. What constitutes extenuating circumstances in these cases is a metter for the chapter to decide and I'm sure your chapter has provisions in its bylaws for waiving dues for what it considers to be extenuating circumstances. If Nationalddues are not involved such action requires no approval of the National Secretary or Board. Furthermore, we pointed out in our past correspondence that Mr. Raymore qualifies for Membership Emeritus except that in order to effect his election we would need a statement from the chapter agreeing to lessen the 15 years of membership requirement and advice that he was in good standing either through his payment for back dues or your chapter's waiver of them, a very simple matter which would have only entailed Mr. Raymore's consent to be one and the executive committee of the chapter considering it and letting us know its decision. Many members enjoy this status especially if the member is over 70 in which instance he can carry on with his practice actively or inactively.

What more flexibility do you have in mind? Off hand, the only thing I could think of which would get to the heart of Mr. Raymore's problem (aside from the dues angle which is no problem) is to condition chapter assignment on a member's ability to travel conveniently to chapter meetings and this, of course, whuld be disasterous, especially to remote chapters which are confronted with this attendance problem more often than others but which need the support of the members just the same.

I do indeed appreciate why Mr. Raymore cannot accept the payment of dues to a chapter which can do him no good but I hope you understand that since he did not wish to transfer elsewhere, only your chapter could have done anything about it, either on its own initiative or at his request.

Re: Henry Raymore

Dear Mrs. Marx:

I am in receipt of your letter of May 16, 1968 and wish to point out firstly, that I corresponded with you as an individual, not as a Chapter Officer, and secondly, that I was not criticizing you, personally, or the A.I.A. in general. I was only making suggestions to remedy what I considered an unfair situation. You must appreciate that I am only trying to be just, as I have no personal interest in the matter.

Since I am not the chapter's secretary, I do not receive all the mail and consequently can react only to those facts I am aware of. I did not know of the circumstances permitting Emeritus membership to Mr. Raymore and am pleased to learn that there is that much flexibility in the A.I.A.'s regulations to take care of situations such as this. I know now that it is our chapter's responsibility to act and will take it up with the Executive Board.

Please understand that, as a member, I have the alternative of being indifferent to situations I come in contact with or reacting positively. We are members of the same organization and we belong to it because we have common interests and feel that we can be mutually helpful. Indifference will only serve to weaken us. "There, but for the Grace of God, god!". I do hope that my correspondence is received in the spirit with which it is written.

Sincerely, Knewhal
