My dear Mr. Rodgers:

Your application for membership in The American Institute of Architects has been on hand at The Octagon for several months. It appears to be complete in every respect except the sending of the routine exhibits.

The sending of such exhibits is a simple matter. The Committee here does not emphasize large work of monumental work, in fact the average project, such as a small residence, or store, or school, or church, is entirely acceptable. The purpose of the exhibits is merely to show that the architect is rendering the proper measure of service to his client.

The exhibits should consist of photographs or camera pictures of two buildings, and working drawings of each sufficient in quantity to show how the drawings are turned out. The material can be taken readily from the architects' files and it will be returned safely and promptly.

On January 1st the initiation fee in connection with Institute membership becomes $25.00. At present it is only $5.00 and all applications completed by the first of November can be disposed of before the end of the year.

If you will respond to this letter by sending the exhibits we will give your application thoughtful and early attention.

Very truly yours,

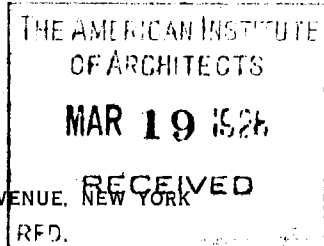

Executive Secretary.

Dear Mr. Kemper,

Last spring I sent to the Institute two photographs as exhibits in connection with my application for membership in the Institute. The plans which I submitted were returned after my election but I did not receive the photographs back.

I am very sorry to bother you but one of these photographs was a snap shot of which I have no duplicate and which I cannot replace as the shrubbery has grown up so much in the mean time. If you could find any trace of it in your office, I would be very grateful to get it back.

With apologies for troubling you,
I remain
