Dear Mr. Gregory:

We are sorry to receive your letter of February 8th advising that you wish to resign your membership in the A.I.A. and the New York Chapter.

Your check for $20.00 for the first period of your 1954 Institute dues is acknowledged with appreciation.

Before acting to accept your resignation, we write to ask if you may not be eligible for election as a Member Emeritus? You have been a member since 1921 and if you could qualify under either of the conditions (a) or (b) of the enclosed form, and if you will then sign and return the request we shall be glad to see that it receives proper attention.

A Member Emeritus of The Institute retains all of the rights and privileges of corporate membership, but is exempt from the payment of further dues to the A.I.A. and the chapter to which he is assigned.

We look forward to hearing from you concerning this suggestion at your convenience.

Sincerely yours,

JULIUS GREGORY, ARCHITECT, DEAD

Home Designer's Work Was Widely Reproduced—Ideas Publicized in Magazines

Julius Gregory, architect of homes, died Sunday night in the Amity Nursing Home, Ringoes, N. J., after an illness of several months. His age was 80.

Mr. Gregory, whose designs for home magazines caused some of his houses to be reproduced widely across the country, was essentially a transitional architect. His work, often adapting newer concepts to traditional styles, was a bridge to the designs of later, modern architects.

His New York practice, first at 2 Park Avenue and later at 660 Madison Avenue, spanned forty-two years, up to his retirement two years ago. At that time he moved to New Hope, Bucks County, Pa.

Born in Sacramento, Calif., he attended the University of California and studied abroad before establishing his practice in New York.

He served as architectural consultant for House and Garden magazine, for whom he designed the Ideal House, and for House Beautiful, whose Pacesetter House he developed. Over the years his plans frequently won awards from professional societies.

During his career he designed many church structures. Among these were three Methodist edifices in New York: the Church of All Nations, 9 Second Avenue; Calvary Church, 1885 University Avenue, the Bronx and the Methodist Home, an institution for the aged on Spuyten Duyvil Parkway in the Bronx.

During World War I, Mr. Gregory, as chief camoufler for the United States Shipping Board, designed camflage for all United States shipping vessels. During World War II he was associated with the War Production Board.

He was a member of the American Institute of Architects and the ~~Architectural~~ League.

Surviving are his widow, Lovrien, and two sons, Jules of Lambertville, N. J.; and Alfred Lawrence.
