Following is the memorial to the late Alfred Stone, passed at a special meeting of the Chapter, the day after Mr. Stone's death:

IN MEMORIAM.
ALFRED STONE, F. A. I. A.

Alfred Stone—honored of men and devoting his life to their service; full of years and yet, even to the last, more diligent in his varied duties than most men of lesser age; public spirited to a degree but rarely equalled; clear-headed, kind-hearted and bearing his brothers' burdens—has been gathered to his fathers.

We, who were professionally associated with him, happy in our many years of intimate intercourse and sensible of the great loss which, in common with the entire community, the Chapter has sustained, desire to record our esteem for him as an architect, a citizen and a man; our sorrow for this sudden severance of our close companionship and our sympathy with those bound to him by the tender ties of kin. For them and for us there is the knowledge that, as the years go by, the community will still more fully appreciate the worth and still more highly honor the name of Alfred Stone.

For the Rhode Island Chapter of the American Institute of Architects,
PRESCOTT O. CLARKE,
NORMAN M. ISHAM,

CONNECTICUT CHAPTER.

OFFICERS FOR 1908-1909.

President,	WARREN R. BRIGGS.
Vice-President,	WILFRED E. GRIGGS.
Secretary,	F. IRVIN DAVIS.
Treasurer,	F. IRVIN DAVIS.
Director,	CHARLES O. WHITMORE.

Among the topics of importance which were discussed at the recent annual meeting of the Chapter was the proposed change of the Schedule of Charges by the Institute.

The Connecticut Chapter is opposed to any change in the rates as the public, having become accustomed to the present schedule, would be inconvenienced by any departure from same. The delegates to the Convention were therefore instructed to declare the Connecticut Chapter as averse to any change in the present schedule.

BROOKLYN CHAPTER.

The twenty-five members of the Brooklyn Chapter, and their eight guests who accepted the invitation of the Directors of the Academy of Music, Brooklyn, through the kindness of the architects, Messrs. Herts and Tallant, to inspect their magnificent building at its formal opening, will ever reckon the occasion as a red letter day in the history of the Chapter.

The unanimous opinion of all who accepted the invitation was that the building is a magnificent, practical, and singularly suitable conception, both as to construction, decoration and color, reflecting great and lasting honor on the architects, constructors, artists and the public spirited men who helped financially toward its erection and conception.

At a dinner which followed the afternoon reception held in the assembly room of the Hauf Brau Haus, given by the Chapter to the architects of the Academy, we were greatly honored by having, as our guest, Mr. Henry Beaumont Herts and Mr. Hugh Tallant, who compose the firm of Herts & Tallant, including some of their office staff, and Mr.

Cass Gilbert, President of the Institute, this being the first time in the history of the Chapter when it was honored by a President of the Institute.

Two notable speeches were delivered, the first by Cass Gilbert, President of the Institute, on the work of the Institute, its aims, purposes and future, which fired all who heard it with a greater respect for our art and Institute, the second by Mr. Henry Beaumont Herts, on the great importance and underlying principle which actuated the erection of the Brooklyn Academy of Music, referring to it as the first erection of its kind, aims and purposes in the United States. Both speakers showed great eloquence, a trait rarely possessed by men who also exhibit such high architectural and artistic ability.

Other speeches in happy vein were made by Mr. Hugh Tallant, and Mr. Chas. I. Berg, formerly Secretary of the New York Chapter.

The following are the names of the members who contributed to this pleasure and the honor of the Chapter, by accepting the invitation to visit at its opening, the Brooklyn Academy of Music, and the Chapter Dinner: President Henry Clay Carrel, Secretary Walter E. Parfitt, Treasurer Henri Fouchaux, Surveyor Alexander Mackintosh, Frank H. Quinby, Julius F. Harder, Beverly S. King, Daniel G. Malcolm, Henry C. VanClees, Arne Dehli, S. W. Dodge, Chas. Werner, A. Lovell, Hubert Dunning.

The guests were: Henry B. Herts, Hugh Tallant, Cass Gilbert, Chas. I. Berg, Chas. H. Gillespie, Tom McNulty, Louis St. Lanne, and a friend of Arne Dehli.

(From Philadelphia Press).

Among the matters of interest to others than themselves brought before the Philadelphia Chapter of the American Institute of Architects at its annual meeting last week, was the report of its committee on registration of architects.

This report was to the effect that registration would result in the introduction of higher standards of professional attainments, and thereby greatly benefit the public as well as the profession; that it would prove to be a safeguard against incompetent architects and engineers.

The committee was of the opinion that legislation along the lines indicated should originate with those most interested in securing such advantages as the act would provide. This, it was explained, meant the public at large, or some organization other than the architects themselves, such as the master builders, the building labor unions, etc., and it was declared that the Chapter stands ready to second with all its powers and influence any such legislation as may be proposed.

Plans for enhancing the architectural beauty of the city by widening the streets in the congested sections of the city and restricting the erection of skyscrapers along certain lines, were discussed.

Interest was centered on a paper entitled, "The Skyscraper and the Streets," read by D. Knickerbacker Boyd, an architect, in which he advocated the theory that the height of buildings should be regulated by the width of the street and that any building which was to be erected higher than a given distance should go a certain distance back from the building line, so as to widen the street at that point. He suggested that the height of buildings be restricted to one and a quarter the width of the street, and that for every ten feet additional in height the building should be put back two feet, thus giving a terraced effect.

WASHINGTON CHAPTER.

A special meeting of the Chapter was held September the eighth to pass resolutions on the death of Mr. Joseph C. Hornblower. The resolutions as adopted were as follows:

"The Washington Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, appreciating the character and ability of Mr. Joseph C. Hornblower, feel, by his death, that Washington has lost a citizen of high aspirations, honest purpose, and energetic personality, who gave unstintingly of his time and energy to movements for the beautification of the city on national and artistic lines, and to the education of the public in the higher ideals of art.

"That the profession of the country has lost a practitioner of distinguished merit, who always has insisted on honest and safe construction, just business management, and artistic expression in his work.

"That members of the Washington Chapter have lost a kind and intelligent friend, who was ever ready with sympathy and assistance, an example of honest purpose, and higher ideals of friendship and professional practice.

"While expressing an appreciation of his work, we wish to tender our sincere sympathy to Mrs. Hornblower and his family."

OBITUARIES.

JOSEPH C. HORNBLOWER, F. A. I. A.

Mr. Joseph Coerten Hornblower died August 21, 1908, in the Hague, Holland.

Mr. Hornblower was one of the most prominent architects of Washington. He was born in Paterson, N. J., in 1848. His father was the Rev. William H. Hornblower, D. D.

Mr. J. C. Hornblower graduated at Yale in 1869, taking the degree of Ph. B., and completed his architectural studies in the atelier of J. L. Pascal, Paris. He married Miss Caroline Bradley, daughter of Mr. Joseph Bradley, associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court. He was a member of the Metropolitan, Cosmos and Chevy Chase Clubs in Washington and the University and National Arts Clubs in New York. He was a past Director and a Fellow of the American Institute of Architects, having been elected to membership in 1893.

In the practice of his profession he was associated with Mr. James Rush Marshall for about thirty years. Many of the most notable residences of this city have been designed by this firm, among which may be mentioned the Boardman, Tuckerman, Frasier, Gray, Philips and Ward residences.

They won in competition the Baltimore Custom House, which has just been completed, and stands as one of the most imposing and successful of our government buildings.

They are the architects of the New National Museum—one of the largest, most costly, and which will be one of the most meritorious of our new government buildings.

Mr. Hornblower was a force for good in the community and in his profession. With high ideals he insisted on honest and safe construction, just business management and artistic expression in his work.

He gave unstintingly of his time and energy, to public movements for the betterment of his Art, to the education of the community in the ideals of art, and to the beautification of Washington City. His advice and assistance will be missed by the citizen and the profession.

(From the Minutes of the meeting of the Board of Directors, A. I. A., September 24th, 1908.)

"The Board of Directors of the American Institute of Architects, in meeting assembled, unanimously passed the following resolution, ordered it spread upon the minutes and that a copy be sent to the family of the late Mr. Hornblower:

Whereas, the profession having suffered an unspeakable loss in the death of Joseph C. Hornblower, therefore be it

Resolved, that while no words of ours can lighten the loss of his bereaved family, this Board cannot refrain from expressing its heartfelt sympathy, and paying a tribute to one who stood for all that the Institute holds in highest esteem."

Under "Chapter Notes" will be found the Resolutions passed by the Washington Chapter, A. I. A., on the death of Mr. Hornblower.

ALFRED STONE, F. A. I. A.

Mr. Alfred Stone, son of Rev. Thomas Treadwell and Laura (Poor) Stone was born in East Machias, Me., July 29, 1834. His early education was obtained at the Washington Academy, East Machias, and the Public Schools in Salem, Mass., where he graduated in 1850 from the Bowditch English High School. He took some post graduate study there in surveying and drawing, and the study of the orders with an Englishman of Irish extraction by the name of O'Connor.

Six years were spent in the Boston office of Towle & Foster, 1852, Washburn & Brown, 1855, and Arthur Gilman, 1856, and he designed and superintended the building of the first section of Hotel Pelham, 1856-8. In 1859 he entered the office of Mr. Alpheus C. Morse, of Providence, with whom he worked and in whose business he had an interest until the breaking out of the Civil War.

Mr. Stone left Providence with the idea of entering the army but was prevented by an injury to his knee which unfitted him for service.

For three years he was connected with other pursuits, in 1862 traveling in England, Wales and Ireland on business.

In the spring of 1864 he opened an office in Providence. In 1866 he took Mr. W. H. Emmerton into partnership. Mr. Emmerton was killed in the Revere, Mass., railroad collision in 1871, and in 1873 Mr. C. E. Carpenter became Mr. Stone's partner. In 1882 Mr. E. R. Willson was taken into the firm and remained a member until his death in 1906. In 1901 Mr. Walter G. Sheldon became associated with the firm, which was known at the time of Mr. Stone's death as Stone, Carpenter & Sheldon.

In 1870 he was elected to membership in the American Institute of Architects, and was its Secretary from 1893 to 1898, when the Headquarters of the Institute was established in Washington; and served on the Board of Directors until his death. Mr. Stone was a member of the Executive Committee of the National Fire Prevention Association as the representative of the Institute, also of the National Electrical Association. He was at the time of his death President of the Rhode Island Chapter, A. I. A., and in this connection a member of the Metropolitan Park Commission of Providence.

Mr. Stone married, in 1864, Ellen N. Putnam and they had five children—three sons who died in childhood and two daughters who survive him. Mr. Stone died at Peterboro, N. H., September 4, 1908.

Among the buildings designed by Mr. Stone and his associates are: Providence County Court House; Providence Public Library; N. Y., N. H. & H. R.R. Station, Providence; Y. M. C. A. Building; Central Police Station and District Court; Poor Department; Rhode Island State Prison; State Alms House, and Chapel for Sockanosset School; Slater Hall, Lyman Gymnasium, Colgate Hoyt Swimming Pool for Brown University; Pembroke Hall and Sayles Gymnasium for Women's College; Lippitt Hall, Kingston; Industrial Trust Company Building; Union Trust Company Building; Lauderdale, Francis and Stanhope Buildings; Providence Institution for Savings; Exchange Bank; Pendleton Museum; Barrington Town Hall and Library; Library at Bolton, Mass., and numerous private houses.

*(From the minutes of the meeting of the Board of Directors, A. I. A.,
September 24th, 1908.)*

"The Board of Directors of the American Institute of Architects in meeting assembled, unanimously passed the following resolution, ordered it spread upon the minutes and that a copy be sent to the family of the late Alfred Stone.

Whereas, a peculiar sense of loss is felt by every member of the Board in the death of our devoted co-worker Alfred Stone, therefore be it

Resolved, That our sincere and heartfelt sympathy be extended to the bereaved family whose loss is deeply appreciated by those with whom he stood shoulder to shoulder, through the many years he labored so faithfully for the Institute's welfare, the Board of Directors, as representing the Institute, desires to record its high appreciation of Mr. Stone's eminent services to the profession throughout his long and honorable career."

Under "Chapter Notes" will be found the resolutions passed by the Rhode Island Chapter, A. I. A., on the death of Mr. Stone.
