Dear Miss Harrar:

Mr. Landry has asked me to reply to your letter concerning Mr. J. Russell Bailey I am pleased to enclose herewith a sketch of him from the "American Architects Directory" published in 1962.

In addition to the main building for the Arlington County Public Library, he has I believe done at least two branches for it, as well as the main library for the Fairfax County Public Library. I imagine that a check of the architectural issues of Library Journal would reveal other recent examples of his work.

Although I have had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Bailey I am not too much familiar with his consultant work, although I imagine he has done quite a bit. I did note in the program for the dedication of the Rare Book Library at the Washington National Cathedral, just opened last month, that he had served as consulting architect on that project.

I hope the above will be of assistance to you.

Sincerely yours,

George E. Pettengill
