David L. Southey, 63, architect of the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery, Department of the Navy, died Tuesday at Georgetown University Hospital of complications following removal of an aneurysm from the aorta.

Southey, who lived at 2800 Quebec St., N.W., was born in Bridgeport, Connecticut and was a registered architect in that state. He was a member of the American Institute of Architects and the Architectural Association of London, England. He graduated from Salisbury School, Salisbury, Connecticut, and received a Bachelor of Arch. from the University of Pennsylvania. From 1936 to 1941 he was a partner of E.G. From 1946 to 1952, he practiced architecture in Bridgeport, Conn. Since 1953, he has been the Architect for the Bureau of Medicine and surgery, Department of the Navy, receiving in December 1965 the Meritorious Civilian Service award from the Surgeon of the Navy, Vice Admiral R.B. David Ludgate Southey, AIA was born in 1911 and spent his earlier years in Bridgeport, Conn., where he attended high school. He subsequently attended Salisbury Preparatory School, and graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1936 with the bachelor of architecture degree.

Following graduation Mr. Southey worked in London, England, as an architect. His distinguished career in government service began in 1941 when he joined the staff of the Chief of Engineers, War Department. In 1943 Mr. Southey volunteered for active duty in the U.S. Navy, where he progressively advanced in commissioned rank from LTJG to LCDR in 1946. Following a period of active naval service he became a prominent architect in his native Bridgeport, where he practiced until 1952.

Returning to the Navy as a civilian architect for the Bureau of Yards and Docks, Mr. Southey's outstanding ability to design medical facilities received early recognition. In 1953 Mr. Southey joined the staff of the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery, where he remained as the senior architect in the facility design section of the Planning Division, until his death on 27 Aug 1974.

Mr. Southey's professional expertise in designing hospitals won for him both national and international recognition. Foreign nations repeatedly requested his aid in designing their hospitals. This he did willingly, on his own time, never accepting reimbursement for these services. On 10 separate occasions the Chief of the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery (BUMED) gave formal recognition to Mr. Southey's exceptional and dedicated service in the form of specific awards, including 2 Navy Superior Civilian Service Awards and the Navy Meritorious Civilian Service Award. A further indication of his preeminence, and on the basis of his impressive credentials, proven ability, and outstanding architectural accomplishments, Mr. Southey was selected as a member of the prestigious American Institute of Architects (AIA), and the Architectural Association, London, England.

The loss of his professional acumen is keenly felt, especially by BUMED, to which he had dedicated the last 21 years of his life. This truly gentle man, who never expressed a complaint or harsh word, will be long remembered for his characteristic response, "No problem," which exemplified the positive attitude he brought to his desk — to do whatever was necessary to accomplish the task. His professionalism, enthusiasm, quick humor, and loyalty to the Navy Medical Department will be sorely missed by all who knew him. Many Navy shipmates and fellow workers mourn his passing, and extend their sympathy to his beloved wife, Kathleen. ☙
