WINTER PARK ARCHITECT, PRESIDENT OF STATE ARCHITECTS' ASSOCIATION

During the FAAIA's 61st Annual Convention to be held October 2 - 5, at the Orlando Hyatt House, a new President will take over.

Nils M. Schweizer, FAIA of Winter Park, will be installed as President of the Association.

Viewing 1976 as a year of extreme significance to the profession of architecture, Schweizer has labeled his program as President, "Images - The 1976 Bicentennial".

During his term as President, Schweizer hopes to lead Florida architects in the study of energy conservation, a review of the trends towards consumerism, increased community activities by architects, and aiding the state education system.

His professional affiliations include: Fellow of the AIA; Anthony L. Pullara
Memorial State Member Award; Honor Award of the FAAIA; Chairman of Florida Energy Committee; Past President of the Guild for Religious Architecture; Past Secretary and Vice President of the FAIA; Member, Governor's Task Force on Land and Water Management; Past Chairman of the Long Range Planning Committee of the Episcopalian Diocese of Central Florida; Past President of the Mid-Florida Chapter, AIA.

Schweizer is the Chairman of the Board of the Environmental Design Group of Winter Park, Florida.

He studied architecture at the University of Georgia and the University of Zurich.
He then received a Taliesin Fellowship and studied under the late Frank Lloyd Wright.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

Awards for professional excellence, community service and craftsmanship highlighted the first event of "Architectural Week" in Dade County-- the annual Awards Dinner of the Florida South Chapter of the American Institute of Architects.

President Glenn A. Buff presented the Silver Medal Award, the highest bestowed by the Chapter, to six local architects -- Robert M. Little, Marion Manley, Rufus Nims, Alfred Browning Parker, Igor Polevitsky and (posthumously) to the late Robert Law Weed "in recognition of the quality of architectural work done by them over the years, the leadership they have shown in the profession and examples they have set which inspired their fellow architects."

The coveted AIA Community Service Award was presented to two persons this year-- both architects--for their outstanding contributions to the South Florida area.

Architect George Reed, Chairman of the Dade County Housing and Urban Development agency, was honored, said Buff, "because of the great work he has performed and the sacrifices he has made in the 'Little HUD' post as well as in other worthwhile efforts, especially in preserving the ecological assets of Dade County."

Thurston Hatcher, like Reed a past president of the local AIA Chapter, was the other Community Service Award winner, "for his outstanding service in creating the South Florida 'Tree Bank' and his contributions to the concept of 'incentive zoning,' rewarding developers who provide open space and landscaping around their structures.

Nils Schweitzer of Lakeland, incoming president of the Florida Association of the AIA, and guest speaker at the Awards Banquet held at the Miami Springs Villas last Friday evening, was presented with a special Award of Honor "for the extended service he has provided throughout the State of Florida for those causes in architecture which have had great impact upon all Floridians."

Awards of Merit were presented by the AIA to two educators and a leader of another profession. They were :

Miami Dade Community College President Peter Masiko "for the leadership role he played and the influence he has had in the creation of the Miami-Dade Community College facilities and the impact they have had on good architecture in the community."

Herbert M. Schwartz, immediate past president of the Miami Chapter of the Florida Engineering Society "for the work he has done in the community to further the architectural profession."

Albert Very of the University of Miami's Center for Urban and Regional Studies" for his environmental studies and the impact they have had on architecture."

The Chapter presented the "AIA Craftsman of the Year" Awards to:

Paul Bertron of Florida Cast Stone Co., Tampa, for pre-cast work on the new Miami Police Station.

Don D. Meyers for his craftsmanship on the stone fireplace in the new Dick Cannon residence.

Roberto Palenzuela of Rolu Woodworking Co., Hialeah, for woodwork in the City Council Room of the new Homestead City Hall.

The AIA "New Product of the Year" award was presented to Jose Lopez, designer for Camilo Muebles, Inc., Coral Gables furniture firm, for 2 chairs

The Chapter's Interiors of the Year" Awards were presented to:
William King, Winston Lippert and Ronald Robinson of the AI Group, for the interior of the Stewart Medical Group office at Mercy Hospital, and

Charles M. Sieger, AIA, and Mark J. Spector for their joint venture in designing Spec's Music Shop at Dadeland.

The AIA Student Award to the most outstanding fifth (final) year student in the University of Miami's Department of Architecture was won by Pasquale Papaianne.

Charles Harrison Pawley, AIA, chairman of "Architectural Week," said the highlight of the week's activities will be the Sixth Annual Urban Workshop of Community Leaders aboard the S.S. Monarch Sun sailing Friday
(Nov. 21) and returning Monday morning, Nov. 24th.

"New Hope for Florida Cities" is the topic and three of the foremost leaders in the nation on urban redevelopment will address Workshop participants.

"We hope to learn how we can tear down slum and depressed areas in all sections of Florida, small town and big cities," said Jose Feito, AIA, Workshop chairman,"and replaced them with needed community developments through private enterprise. Our speakers have been the leaders in accomplishing this in Missouri, California and other states," Feito added.

Urban Workshop participants will include legislators, educators,

These architects were recipients of awards recently given by the Florida South Chapter of the American Institute of Architects at an Architectural Week banquet held at the Miami Springs Villas in Miami, Fla. Nils Schweitzer (left) of Lakeland, Fla., incoming president of the Florida Association of the AIA, and guest speaker at the banquet, was presented with a special Award of Honor "for the extended service he has provided throughout the State of Florida for those causes in architecture which have had great impact upon all Floridians." The coveted AIA Community Service Award was presented to architect George Reed (right center), Chairman of the Dade County Housing and Urban Development Agency, and Thurston Hatcher (right), like Reed a past president of the local AIA Chapter. Mr. Reed was honored for the sacrifices he has made in the "Little HUD" post he holds and Mr. Hatcher for his service in creating the South Florida "Tree Bank," among other things. Presenting the awards was Glenn A. Buff, a Coral Gables architect and president of the local AIA Chapter.

Central Florida architect Nils Schweizer dies at 62

By Janita Poe

OF THE SENTINEL STAFF

They called him the dean of Orlando architecture. For more than 30 years, Nils Schweizer influenced architectural design in Central Florida.

Schweizer, 62, died Friday after a short illness.

Those who knew him say he was more than a designer of large buildings. His commitment to his environment, community and church earned him a reputation as a humanitarian.

He was a very modest, loving man who employed good people around him," said Lowell Lotspeich, 53, an architect who worked in Schweizer's offices during the 1970s. "He would let them be free to express themselves under his umbrella."

Schweizer was greatly influenced by Frank Lloyd Wright, with whom he studied architecture in the prestigious Taliesin Fellowship program. He also studied at the University of Georgia in 1943 and in Zurich in 1947.

He helped design Florida Southern College in Lakeland, Orlando International Airport, Epcot Center's Mexican pavilion, Loch Haven Park and St. Luke Episcopal Cathedral in downtown Orlando. In 1964 he helped build the Loch Haven Art Center, and in 1985 his firm designed the addition to the Orlando Public Library.

Schweizer came to Central Florida in 1953 from Baltimore to work as the Southeastern representative for Wright's firm and to oversee the design of Florida Southern. During that time, he met his future wife, Beverly, who was an elementary education student at Florida Southern.

When he was president of the Lakeland Little Theatre, he designed the sets. "We were both in the plays," said Mrs. Schweizer.

DEATH

"He had a lot of energy. He worked long and hard and went out of his way for people and projects."

In 1960, Schweizer moved with his wife to Orlando and co-founded the architectural firm of Schweizer Associates with his younger brother Mark. His youngest brother, Hans, joined the firm several years later.

The firm has been responsible for the design of more than 100 buildings in Central Florida. Like the avant-garde Wright, Schweizer's designs placed emphasis on the environment and were tailored to serve human needs.

"He loved the people part about architecture more than the bricks and stones," said Lotspeich.

"He was professed in the organic approach to architecture, which is very sight-sensitive," said his son Kevin, 29, an architect with Integrated Design Group in Sanford. Kevin established Integrated Design with his brother Garth, 30, a landscape architect, and his sister Tamara, 25, an interior designer.

Schweizer was a former chairman of the Florida Hospital Foundation, and a former member of the Loch Haven Park Board. He was a past president of the Loch Haven Art Center and was a trustee of Florida Defenders of the Environment, a statewide organization that has worked to protect the state's environment. He also helped organize Kairos Inc., a national prison ministry group.

He was president of the Mid-Florida Chapter of the Florida Association of the American Institute of Architects in 1986.

His wife said her husband built their home and indirectly influenced three of his five children to work as professional designers.

"He created a physical and mental atmosphere for his family," she said. "He certainly had great spiritual values that were a part of him. These were reflected in his relationships with his family, work and church."

Schweizer is also survived by son David, daughter Kyra and four grandchildren.

Funeral services will begin at 1 p.m. Tuesday at the Episcopal Church of the Good Shepherd, 331 Lake Ave., Maitland.

In place of flowers, the family requests that donations be sent to the Nils M. Schweizer Memorial Nursing Scholarship Fund, in care of Florida Hospital, 601 Rollins St., Orlando, 32803; the Kairos Prison Ministry, 1298 Minnesota Ave., Suite E, Winter Park, 32789; or the Episcopal Church of the Good Shepherd.
