My dear Sir:-

Will you be kind enough to advise us concerning Mr. W. J. Sayward? according to our records, now a member of the Washington State Chapter. It is understood, however, that a Mr. W. J. Sayward has recently joined the Georgia Chapter and we are wondering whether this is the same man that is a member of the Washington State Chapter.

If you will advise us in this matter promptly it would be appreciated as the Annual, for which the information is desired, is to go to press within a few days.

Yours very truly,

Acting Executive Secretary.

Dear Mr. Kemper:

A few days ago we were notified by the Post Office Department that blue print drawings and specifications could not be forwarded in the same parcel, except at the first class rates, owing to a new postal law which has been put into effect.

I have no doubt but that other architects the country over have felt the hardship of this ruling, and very likely you have heard from some before this.

The local authorities have promised to take the matter up with the Department in Washington, and get a ruling from them.

You can readily see that whereas we have been in the habit of rolling plans and specifications for shipment in one parcel, that the requirement for two parcels not only doubles the office labor, but also increases the cost of mailing the specifications, which it is now held, must go at first class rate. Furthermore, the separation of plans and specifications causes a great inconvenience all around, and there is every argument in the world against its being done.

If it is possible for your office to exert any influential pressure upon the Post Office Department, toward the classification of blue printed specifications as blue prints instead of typewritten material, you will do us all considerable service.

Thanking you for an effort in this direction,

I am

With further reference to yours of August 26th, concern-

Office.

Apparently their postal rates in such cases are fixed by law and the Department is without power to make modifications or changes.

However, the situation is being looked into and the Department will make a report, which I will send on to you as soon as it is received.

I was pleased to receive recently your enclosures marked "As of interest." Somehow I appreciate very much this familiar legend and I wish to assure you that there is nothing in the world of greater interest from my point of view.

I regret very much that I was unable to accept the recent proffer of the Chairmanship of the Committee on Practice, but, as I tried to explain, it seemed wholly unwise, under conditions as they existed, for the time being.

I want you to feel, however, that my interest is right where it has been and if there is anything that I am able consistently to do I will be more than glad to be with you.

Dear Ed:

I cut the enclosed clipping from a class report of 1901, M.I.T. I thought you would be interested. He was not only a good friend of yours but mine also.

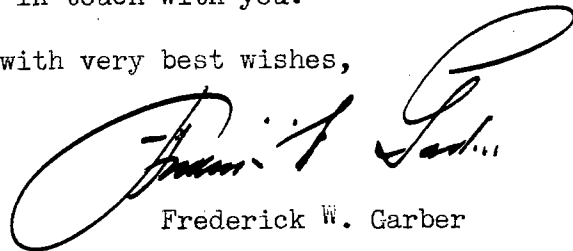

In the class of 1902, I found that we lost Ellis Lawrence of Portland.

I am not in the habit of looking at the vital statistics. I just happened to fall upon these two.

I am still doubtful as to whether or not I can make the convention, and goodness knows I would like to go to it.

I hope I have cleared up everything to your satisfaction on the Fellowship Committee. This, as you know, is my last year, however, I expect to keep in touch with you.

As always, with very best wishes,

I regretfully report the deaths of two classmates: William J. Sayward on December 21 at his home in Decatur, Ga.; and Ralph Whitman on February 3 at his home in Danbury, Conn.

The following report of the career of William Sayward was sent by C. A. Smith '99 of Atlanta to L. H. Turner '99, Secretary of the Atlanta Alumni Association, and forwarded by Professor Locke '96, Alumni Secretary: "William J. Sayward, 70, nationally known architect, died . . . at his home, 403 Candler Street, Decatur, [Ga.] on Dec. 21, '45. He was born in Woodstock, Vt., the son of the late Charles Woodbury and Melissa Follansbee Sayward. He received his B.S. at the University of Vermont in 1897, later winning his B.S. in architecture from . . . Technology in 1901. In 1904 he married Miss Clara Louise Purple. Mr. Sayward began his architectural career in New York City in 1901, later going to Seattle, and moving to Atlanta in 1913. He became a member of the Edwards and Sayward firm here in 1914, and upon the death of Mr. Edwards in 1939, the name of the firm was changed to Sayward and Logan. He continued the association with the firm until his death.

"Among buildings designed by Mr. Sayward's firm were: structures at the University of Florida; the Florida State College for Women; Winthrop College; Columbia Seminary; Agnes Scott College, Decatur; Atlanta Girls' High School; York, S.C., County Court House, and the bank of Tifton, Ga. In addition he designed the Decatur City Hall.

"Mr. Sayward was a member of the Decatur Board of Education and the University Housing Projects. Formerly vice-president of the American Institute of Architects, he was also ex-chairman of the Affiliated Technical Societies of Atlanta. He was past president of the Camp Fire Girls and a director of the Boys' Club. He was a Mason, Shriner and member of the Atlanta City Club; a member of the Atlanta Civitan Club; and a member of the Atlanta Athletic Club. Survivors include his wife; two daughters, Miss Madeline Sayward and Mrs. Mary S. Rogers, both of Atlanta; and a grandson, Sayward Rogers."
